

It is my opinion that Satellite radio should not be restricted from offering local weather and traffic. As a satellite subscriber I find this a valuable service because I have another source of information to choose from rather than relying solely on traditional local broadcasters for this information. I believe the NAB is trying to stifle competition to protect its own interests and is not concerned with the interests of listeners. This is about competition and the way I see it local broadcasters have a competitive advantage over Satellite in that their service is free and requires no subscription. To keep satellite radio out of the local business would be like telling local broadcasters that they can not report on anything at the national level.
